PROEM.

This Collection is not the result of a passing whim or fancy, but rather the accumulation of a life-time of continuous efforts, for Mr. Saltmarsh, though his name may be unknown to many present collectors, was an active gatherer of old coins and curiosities long before public attention was generally attracted to the subject by the first great auction sales of Colonial and United States Coins, 30 years ago. It is to be regretted that during all those years, and in fact until within a comparatively short period, Mr. Saltmarsh should have confined himself to collecting from the limited sources of supply of his neighborhood, or through the efforts of friends and neighbors only. Had he then been as active a purchasing collector as he developed to be during the last decade, it is quite possible that his cabinet would have taken rank among the great collections of the country.

When, however, Mr. Saltmarsh began to be represented at sales, he bought scarcely anything but coins or objects of real value and importance, as disclosed by the many fine and valuable coins described in the following pages. Such as 273 Willow Tree Shilling, 290 Original 1804 over '03 Dollar, the Gold Coins embraced between Nos. 291 and 307, the many double and triple Crowns of Austria and Saxony, the important Brunswick-Luneburg series, by far the most complete ever offered here, No. 502 Syracuse Medallion, which once sold for $250, the Jewish Shekels and fraction, Nos. 532, 533 and 540; many of the Antiquities, embraced between Nos. 646 and 685, are all of decided rarity and value, and will offer very excellent material for the formation of new collections, or add importance to the collections into which they will become absorbed.

It is perhaps needless to say, that with the exception of the 1804 Dollar, on which the moderate upset price of $350.00 has been placed at my suggestion, there is no reserve, open or secret, on any of the coins or objects. Having reached a period in life when he thought a disposal of his collection wise and expedient, Mr. Saltmarsh placed it in my hands for unreserved and absolute sale to the highest bidder, and every Coin, Medal, Archaeological Object or Book, will be sold without any restriction whatsoever.

The compiler of this Catalogue respectfully calls the attention of collectors to the plate edition, of which but 50 copies are printed. Both the 10 Crown pieces, the complete series of Bell Thalers, the obverse of the newly discovered, and for the first time offered variety of 1804 Dollar, and many coins of interest and beauty will be found illustrated, giving this edition more than passing interest.

The Archaeological and Bibliographical portions of the Collection will be on exhibition for two days before the sale; any of the coins can also be seen by special appointment with me; the entire collection will be on exhibit on the days of the sale.

ORIGINAL 1804 DOLLAR.

290 1804 over '03. Liberty and stars bold, the bust and field showing some marks of circulation; in the date the 4 is heavy and large, the 3 plainly visible beneath; the rev., fine; the incuse inscription on edge perfect and not at all blurred by the pressure of smooth collar as in the case of all known restrikes; there is a crack in die to right of 4, extending from edge toward centre, for a distance of about $\frac{3}{16}$ in. See plate.

Saml

On account of the peculiar mingling of the figures 4 and 3 and also because the obverse die cracked, it is probable that very few specimens of this Dollar were struck at the mint; at any rate but two are known at the present time: this one, which for 20 years before it fell into the hands of Mr. Saltmarsh was owned by Mr. Milton Chase of Haverhill, Mass., and the one in the cabinet of John Haigh, Esq., of Somerville, Mass. These two Dollars have received the endorsement of such an eminent numismatist as S. S. Crosby, who, in the American Journal of Numismatics for April, 1891, says: "I have seen a dollar of 1804, which I believe to be genuine, struck from a die altered from 1803, with both figures plainly showing. * * * The dollar just mentioned, 1803–4, and another, which I am not alone in considering a genuine original, should, in my opinion, be included in the list of the dollars of 1804. * * * Upon careful examination, some peculiarities are discovered which render it impossible for me to consider it other than a genuine original dollar of 1804. This opinion is shared by others who are perhaps better qualified than myself to judge of such matters.

ANTIQUITIES AND CURIOSITIES.

A number of rare, valuable, representative specimens, will be found among the following:

646 Egypt. Memorial group dedicated to Osiris. Kneeling figure holding tablet inscribed with hieroglyphs, the figure of Osiris between its knees; hieroglyphs at sides of base, and also on arms. White terra-cotta, perfect, except head of Osiris fractured. Very rare; from a tomb of the nineteenth dynasty at Thebes. Height 14, length 9, width 4 inches.

647 — Nude female figure reclining on a couch. Terra-cotta: from ancient tomb at Thebes. 7 in.

648 — Profiles in slight relief of Nubian captives on fragment of red clay brick. 5½ in.

649 — Bronze Statuette. Standing figure of Osiris, the god of the Dead, and the father of Horus, shrouded like a mummy, the arms crossed on breast holding a staff. Height 8¾ in., exclusive of modern base. A most remarkable and valuable piece, originally in the Barlow collection. Worth 600 fes in Egypt.

650 — Osiris. Bronze, conical head-dress. 5 in.

651 — Isis seated, infant Horus on her knees. Bronze, patinated. 4½ in.

652 Egypt. Funereal statuette representing Osiris, the front inscribed with hieroglyphs. Enameled clay; a beautiful and perfect specimen. 6 in.

653 — Sealed clay Jar of the reign of Ha-t-asa of the 18th dynasty, 200 years before the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt. 4½ in.

654 — Tani, goddess of Evil. Profile in green glaze clay. Fine. 2½ in.

655 — Ornate Bead or Seal. Green glaze; very fine. ¾ in.

670 Sections of bronze spiral rings, etc. Ancient Rome. 1½ to 2 in. 4 pcs

671 Bronze Spear Point. Ancient Rome. 3 in.

672 Monster Copper Axe. An extremely large specimen from an Indian Mound at Dayton, Ohio. The edge has been a trifle dulled by hammering, otherwise in perfect condition; partly patinated. The late W. E. Woodward, at one of whose sales (92d, Dec. 1886) this extraordinary specimen was purchased, says, in describing it, "the largest native wrought copper implement that I have met with." 8½ x 5 in., weighs about 5 lbs. Cost $20.25.

673 Copper Implement. Double-pointed, resembling a square-shaped spike, wrought and patinated. Originally in the U. S. National Museum, Wash., D. C.; but more recently from W. E. Woodward's 92d sale, who says that it originally came from a Swanton Indian grave. 5 in. Cost $4.50.

674 Copper Mammal. Hemispherical or conical object, thus designated by Mr. Linney on account of some fanciful ideas concerning certain performances of the aborigines. Covered with marks resembling arabesque ornamentation, possibly the result of oxidation. Fine and rare; from a mound, 14 f. below the surface, Carter Co., Ky. 1½ in.

675 Carving in alabaster of an Indian woman, showing the peculiar style of dressing the hair, and most unmistakable Indian features, from an Indian grave near Los Angeles; the finest object of its class that I have seen; polished and finely finished. Height 2⅝ in.

676 String of polished shell beads, from Indian graves at Swanton, Vermont (10). Originally in the U. S. National Museum, Washington. Very fine and rare. Lot.

677 Olla or Cooking Vessel of steatite, height 14 in., diameter about the same; nearly globular, with an opening 5 in. across. Of remarkable fineness, smooth, polished surface, inside and out. As fine as when made; perfect and without a blemish. Found in Indian grave, Lower California. From W. E. Woodward's 86th sale, June, 1888; cost $41.00.

678 Discoidal Stone. Yellow quartzite, double concave, highly finished and polished; diameter 5¾ in., thickness 2½ in., the cavities are about 1 in. deep. Absolutely perfect, of excessive rarity; Cherokee Co., Georgia. No. 142 of W. E. Woodward's 86th sale; cost $34.00.

679 Discoidal Stone. Plano-convex, hard quartzite. A very fine specimen. $3\frac{3}{8}$ x $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. Cherokee Co., Georgia.

680 Small Mortar. Hard stone, uncommonly fine. 3 x $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. Lower California. From W. E. Woodward's 86th sale; cost $6.00.

681 Indian Baking Pan. Steatite; in form representing the blade of an ordinary shovel, with elevation surrounding three sides of the edge, perforated near top. Width $9\frac{1}{4}$ length $9\frac{3}{4}$ in. A rare specimen, found in Indian grave, Lower California; has been cracked and skillfully mended. From W. E. W's 86th sale; cost $5.00.

682 Pipe. Oblong conical, the flat bottom engraved with wigwam, at the opening of which appears an Indian; the sides are covered with Indian hieroglyphics. There is a recent light chipping at mouth, otherwise perfect. Rare and valuable object; Kansas. $2\frac{1}{2}$ x $1\frac{7}{8}$ in. W. E. W. 92d sale: cost $4.50.

683 Pipe. Dark steatite; perfect. Hightower River, Ga. $1\frac{1}{2}$ in.

684 Quadrangular Stone. Oblong square depression with central perforation; all the edges and corners are chanfered, numerous annulet-shaped ornaments, symmetrically arranged, at sides and bottom. Length 5, width $4\frac{1}{4}$, height $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. Dark brown marble, said to be from a mound in Anderson Co., Ky., but according to Mr. M. F. Savage, more probably of Alaskan origin. The late W. E. Woodward paid $50 for this unique object, the use of which appeared entirely unknown to him; it was bought at his 92d sale by Mr. Saltmarsh for $18.

685 Pendant or Gorget. Catlinite. Oval, depressions at sides, two perforations, polished surface. Extremely fine; I am unable to state locality where found. 4 x 2 in.

686 Stem of Calumet. Highly polished steatite. Though fragmentary, gives an excellent idea of the form of the pipe. Madison Co., Ky. 7 x 2 in. W. E. W. 92d sale; cost $3.

687 Pestle. Flat, thick form. 4 x 4 in. Ohio.
